Albert Oehlen

born 1954 in Krefeld, Germany
lives and works in Switzerland

Albert Oehlen's work is currently included in group exhibitions at Museum Brandhorst, Munich; and Oklahoma Contemporary, both on view until January 2027.

Fish, 2008, belongs to Albert Oehlen's series of 'Advertisement Paintings', which he initiated in 2007. For these works, Oehlen incorporated collaged elements sourced from billboards to present abstract compositions punctuated with textual fragments, figures and objects. In Fish, a poster from the Fundación Española del Corazón (The Spanish Heart Foundation) is positioned at the centre of the composition. This is juxtaposed with a cutting from the Spanish supermarket chain, Eroski, which appears in bright vermillion along the right-hand side of the canvas. The painting's backdrop comprises a large swimming pool in a villa-like setting, flanked by two columns. The image, pasted horizontally on its side, envelops the work in a partial halo of vibrant blue. The work's title – perhaps derived from this glistening, watery habitat – remains characteristically open-ended.

Albert Oehlen's 'Advertisement Paintings' are in the collections of institutions including Centre Pompidou, Paris; Fondation Louis Vuitton, Paris; Hall Art Foundation, Derneburg; Marciano Art Foundation, Los Angeles; Museo Jumex, Mexico City; Museum Brandhorst, Munich; Pinault Collection, Paris & Venice; Rubell Museum, Miami; and Tate, London, among others.

Albert Oehlen

born 1954 in Krefeld, Germany
lives and works in Switzerland

Albert Oehlen's work is currently included in group exhibitions at Museum Brandhorst, Munich; and Oklahoma Contemporary, both on view until January 2027.

Albert Oehlen's Untitled, 1992/2005, belongs to his celebrated series of 'Computerbilder' (Computer Paintings). Oehlen began this body of work derived from computer-generated motifs in 1991, making him one of the first artists to incorporate the digital into the realm of painting. For this series, Oehlen employed basic computer programmes to make onscreen drawings, before enlarging and printing them onto canvas as silkscreens, encouraging the original drawings to pixelate and rupture. He then 'corrected' the compositions by hand, corrupting the electronic patterns with manual, painterly gestures. In this way, the authenticity of the drawing becomes compromised by the machine's low resolution, while the authenticity of the machine is in turn destroyed by the artist's hand.

The present work has been exhibited in several important institutions, including Oehlen's dedicated 'Computerbilder' exhibition at the Hamburger Kunsthalle, Hamburg (2024–2025); Guggenheim Museum, Bilbao (2016–2017); and Carré d'Art - Musée d'art contemporain de Nîmes (2011). Further works from the series are represented in collections such as The Art Institute of Chicago; The Broad, Los Angeles; Fondation Louis Vuitton, Paris; Hill Art Foundation, New York; Los Angeles County Museum of Art; Marciano Art Foundation, Los Angeles; Museum Brandhorst, Munich; and Pinault Collection, Paris & Venice, among others.

‘Is the cherubic head in Up Life Gone Star rising or falling? Is it an angel of mercy or destruction? Is it a meteor, a warhead, or a bright star in the heavens? Is the blackened eye enucleated or dilating to expand a superhuman vision? Brown’s work lures and fascinates through multiple potentialities.’

Bridget Riley

born 1931 in London, UK
lives and works in London, UK

Bridget Riley's work is currently presented in a solo exhibition at Dia Beacon, on long-term view; and a group exhibition at Grand Palais, Paris, until 17 January 2027.

Painted in 2009, Bridget Riley's Vapour 2 presents a re-engagement with an earlier work of the same name from 1970. Executed on a larger scale almost four decades later, the present composition returns to Vapour's delicate colour palette and distinctive composition. In this work, Riley combines the stripe motif, which has recurred throughout her oeuvre in varying formations since the late 1960s, with another, equally important motif: the curve. Here, ribbons of violet, pale orange and green intertwine in a rare deviation from the artist's characteristically linear stripe paintings. Uniting two basic principles of her practice – the curve and the stripe – Riley's return to the composition of Vapour in the present work represents an acknowledgment of its pivotal place within her wider oeuvre.

Vapour 2 has been included in important institutional solo exhibitions at Turner Contemporary, Margate (2025–2026); and Christchurch Art Gallery Te Puna o Waiwhetū (2017). Further examples of Riley's stripe paintings are represented in the Arts Council Collection, London; Buffalo AKG Art Museum; Kunsthaus Zurich; Long Museum, Shanghai; The Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York; Moderna Museet, Stockholm; Museum für Gegenwartskunst Siegen; The Museum of Modern Art, New York; Museums Sheffield; The National Museum of Modern Art, Tokyo; Staatliche Museen zu Berlin; Tate, London; and Walker Art Gallery, Liverpool, among others.
