Jamian Julianovillani

Jamian Julianovillani's sharp, unfiltered visual language draws from the relentless noise of contemporary culture, weaving together fragments from the internet, mass media, and personal memory into dense, hypercharged compositions. Her paintings—meticulously airbrushed yet emotionally volatile—teeter between the absurd and the unsettling, where slapstick humour collides with existential anxiety. Julianovillani treats image-making as a form of sampling, pulling from a vast archive of pop cultural detritus to construct scenes that feel both familiar and disorienting. In her world, the banal becomes bizarre, and the manic energy of her canvases mirrors the fractured rhythms of modern life.

Xiyao Wang

Xiyao Wang's deep sensitivity to movement, balance, and internal rhythm shapes the core of her abstract practice. Her vibrant, large-scale compositions channel a physical dialogue between body and canvas, where gesture becomes language and mark-making a form of translation. Working with a blend of oil, acrylic, chalk, graphite, and oil stick, Wang creates layered, multicoloured lines that echo the fluidity of landscapes and thought. In Wang's paintings, colour, texture, and rhythm converge into a resonant, intuitive whole, offering a powerful visualisation of motion, memory, and feeling.
